

Problem Statement

Farmers face significant crop losses due to delayed pest detection. Manual pest identification is slow, requires expert knowledge, and access to agricultural specialists is limited—especially for small-scale farmers. Existing tools are scattered and often unreliable, leaving farmers unprepared to respond quickly. Since pests can destroy crops within days, there is a need for a fast, accurate, and easily accessible system that provides clear and timely warnings to help farmers reduce crop damage and improve yield.